Talon Grip Review:

I received the above item for a test evaluation for our large handgun option as well as our concealed carry option for our covert units. We received both the rubber and the granulate version. The test weapons were Glock 22 and 43 both Gen4.

Due to the different stock grips of each gun and the nature of how same is carried the Talon grip choice should be pretty obvious. The Glock 43 is an IWB gun that has very little texture to the stock grip. In the situation I preferred the rubber Talon grip. The Glock 22 is an OWB gun that has very good texture on the stock grip. In this situation I preferred the granulate.

These grips are made of high quality materials and has a super strong glue backing. The process is made very simple as long as you follow the instructions by cleaning the gun with alcohol and using a heating element to secure the glue to the firearm. I enjoyed the comfort and traction of the rubber and granulate grips as well as the superb fit and finish.

I would recommend these grips to any LEO/ CCW holder for concealed carry inside the waist band as well as outside the waistband. I believe these grips to be the best grips made to date. The Chatham County Sheriff's Office appreciates the opportunity to test and evaluate this product and looks forward to future business with Talon Grips.
